

AAARI Spotlight

July 2010

Message from AAARI Executive Director

Summer is a time to reflect, explore, travel and catch up on the things we did not get around to during the academic year. AAARI looks forward to hearing about your adventures and accomplishments, and providing a platform to inform the community about your achievements.

In each newsletter, we will showcase the accomplishments of CUNY Asian American faculty, staff and students, and those engaged in Asian American and Asian studies. We invite you to send us information on your research, promotions, and milestones, and on those of your colleagues. It is imperative that that the contributions of our community be shared broadly.

So enjoy the summer, and keep AAARI in mind!

Sincerely,

2010 CUNY Asian American Film Festival

Paul Ong, Dr. Thomas Tam Visiting Professor

Dr. Paul Ong from UCLA will join the faculty of the CUNY Graduate Center as the first Dr. Thomas Tam Visiting Professor in Fall 2010, and will also work with AAARI to strengthen its mission of supporting and developing research on Asian American and Asian issues.

Dr. Ong is Professor of Urban Planning, Social Welfare and Asian American Studies at UCLA. He has done research on the labor market status of minorities and immigrants, displaced high-tech workers, work and welfare and transportation access. He is currently engaged in several projects, including studies on the effects of neighborhood economies on welfare and work, community economic development in minority communities, and the labor market for healthcare workers.

Dr. Ong has served as an advisor to the U.S. Bureau of the Census, and to the California Department of Social Services and the state Department of Employment Development, as well as the Wellness Foundation and the South Coast Air Quality Management District.

Jennifer Hayashida Appointed Director of Asian American Studies Program at Hunter College

Jennifer Hayashida, AAARI Board Member, has officially been appointed Director of the Asian American Studies Program (AASP) at Hunter College. Prof. Hayashida has worked closely with students, faculty, administrators, and community groups to strengthen and expand the Hunter College AASP; initiatives include collaborations with community-based organizations intended to give Hunter students interdisciplinary opportunities to apply their coursework to NYC's dynamic Asian American communities. In addition to her work as an educator, she is a writer and translator, and is currently a writer-in-residence through the Lower Manhattan Cultural Council's 2008-2009 Workspace Program.

Lakshmi Bandlamudi Receives 2010 Fulbright Nehru Research Award

LaGuardia Community College psychology professor Dr. Lakshmi Bandlamudi is the recipient of a 2010 Fulbright Nehru Research Award that will enable her to spend August through mid-February in India as she expands upon research derived from her recently published book, Dialogics of Self, the Mahabharata, and Culture: The History of Understanding and Understanding of History (Anthem Press, 2010). An interdisciplinary psychological interpretation of India's epic text the Mahabharata, the Dialogics of Self examines that work through the lenses of personal past and cultural past.

A native of India, Dr. Bandlamudi earned her M.A. in Developmental Psychology from Columbia's Teachers College and her Ph.D. in the same subject from the CUNY Graduate Center.
